Edison Investment Research expands its Sydney team of equity analysts with the appointment of two analysts from BBY Australia

Hires will significantly strengthen Edison's Asia-Pacific team

Edison Investment Research, the leading international intelligence firm, has further strengthened its Sydney team of equity analysts with the appointment of Dennis Hulme and Moira Daw who join from BBY Australia.

Dennis joins Edison's global healthcare team from BBY where he was a healthcare analyst and brings over 10 years' equities experience. Prior to this, Dennis was a biotech analyst at Hudson Securities. Dennis has also worked as a clinical analyst at the UK Ministry of Agriculture, specialising in the investigations of the Foot and Mouth Disease epidemic, and as a research scientist at the CSIRO. In 2010 he was ranked number two healthcare stock picker at the Starmine analyst awards and holds a PhD from the University of Sydney.

Bringing more than 20 years' equities research and financial services experience, Moira joins Edison's industrials team from BBY, where she was a director of research. Prior to this, Moira spent 11 years with Credit Suisse as a director of equities. Moira is a qualified accountant, having trained at Ernst and Young before joining the Australian Industry Development Corporation as an investment manager and subsequently PriceWaterhouse where she spent seven years as a senior manager in corporate finance.

Edison's total staff now numbers 110, including 80 analysts. The firm provides research on more than 700 companies across five offices globally.

Will Corkill, head of Asia-Pacific region of Edison Investment Research, said:

"We are delighted to welcome both Moira and Dennis to the Edison team, increasing its global presence. With Dennis' academic excellence, his healthcare knowledge and Moira's experience in the industrials sector, their arrival will further permit the highest quality, sector-based research.

Edison opened in Australia three years ago and we have since seen the demand for our services continue to grow as we provide much needed equity research on Asia-Pacific companies for domestic and international investors who seek quality in-depth research and investment ideas."
